

No Smoking Signs

The best environment for your hospitals: clean and smoke-free

The importance of cleanliness & health of the environments in and around hospitals is increasingly recognised. Our bright, eye-catching displays allow flexible and easy communication with those entering hospital buildings.

The signs are often used for displaying information on a hospital's smoke-free policy or the location of designated smoking areas - critical in ensuring healthy environments at doorways. They can direct people support services available for stopping smoking, tell them about the cost of cleaning cigarette butts or function as general message boards for the hospital. One of the key advantages of an electronic sign is their flexibility: unlike with static signage, a change in policy or the need for new messages won't make the sign obsolete.

Scrimsign are an experienced supplier of LED signs to the NHS and offer in-house design and manufacturing skills developed over 27 years in business. The layout, colour and branding of our displays can be customised to ensure they suit your buildings. We also provide easy-to-use control software that can be adapted by our engineers to meet your exact requirements. We're happy to discuss your needs further
